MARTÍN CÓDAX ALBARIÑO 2006 Spain, Rías Baixas

Albariño is the aromatic signature white wine of Galicia in northwest Spain. Located in Cambados, the capital of Val de Salnés, the cellar is one of the most relevant symbols of the region.

Sheltered from the harsh continental weather by a mountain range, the Salnés Valley enjoys a mild climate with no great changes in temperature which, together with the unique soil conditions in the area, create the ideal conditions for producing excellent Albariños.

The wine is a clear, light lemon color with a pronounced, somewhat playful nose. Main aromatic notes show tree fruits: ripe apple, white pear, apricot, and peach. Behind these forward notes are strains of tropical fruit, though these express themselves as more of a floral ripeness than a fruit pucker: mango and green melon, the fragrance of a ripe but not yet cut pineapple. Citrus rind—orange, grapefruit, or lemon—bursting with those fresh citrus oils, adds a note you don't really expect, but that's Albariño, a grape that awaits international notice.
